AMUSEMENTS. The announcement that Daniel Frohman will present his excellent company here at the Opera House next Monday, November 7th, in a great scenic production of the great New York Lyceum Theatre success, "The Prisoner of Zenda," will be received with enthusiasm by all who saw it here last season. This play has attracted more attention and drawn larger audiences than any other which has held the beards during the last ten years, and it is in compliance with repeated requests for it from out of town managers that it has been decided to present it for the coming year. The secret of its success lies in the fact that, while it is modern and up to date, the action is full of romance and picturesqueness. We find a modern nineteenth century English gentleman imbued with all the spirit and dash of a hero of the middle ages, and we are held spelloound by the thrill of intrigue and plot and counterplot, which would have done credit to the pen of Dumas when he depicts the attring events transpiring in the reign of a Medici or a Valois. play has attracted more attention and PARKERSBURG—Onlo river 8 feet 6 inches and failing. Weather threatening and cool. Passed up—Queen City, Barnsdall and Louisville. Down—Val-night, at the Opera House. The score of "El Capitan" being by Sousa, is, of course, a score of marches in the main, yet there are solos and duetts which are notably praiseworthy for melodic shading. Vigor is the key note of El Capitan, however, and the finales of the several acts are spirited and stirring in a marked degree. The company this season is a large one liberally supplied with good voices, pretty faces, fine figures and handsome costumes. The leading role is entrusted to William C. Mandeville, a young comedian of much promise. Kate Micholena, a soprano with a delightful voice, sings the role of Isabel, and the batance of the parts are in the hands of Madeline Lack, Neva Rosa, Erma Miller, Edward P. Wilks, Frederick Knights, John Dunmore, Harry Carter, J. Coulter Hynes, and a large and efficient chorus. All the original costumes and scenery are also displayed with this production. "DARKEST RUSSIA." "Darkest Russia" was produced for the first time in Wheeling at popular prices, at the Grand Opera House last night. The story of the play, dealing as it does with many phases of life in the realm of the czar, was well enacted the realm of the czar, was well enacted by the company, which in strength is above the average. There is not a single weak point in the cast. The oth-er requirements of an artistic produc-tion, special scengry and appropriate costumes, are all met in a satisfactory way. "Darkest Russia" is in every respect a first class and very interest-ing performance, and deserves crowded houses at the Grand during the remain-der of the engagement. The illustrated songs and war views between acts were warmly applauded. The entire com-rany received a curtain call at the end of the third act.

"REMEMBER THE MAINE." "Remember the Maine," a naval war play by Lincoln J. Carter, will be produced on a very elaborate scale at the Grand Opera house the last half of this week. The scenery and mechanical efweek. The scenery and mechanical elfects used in the production of this beautiful play are said to be the acme ofstage realism, and the management call attention to the fact that the picture of the scenes as well as of the advertising matter displayed by this company is not in the least exaggerated, but are made from photographs taken by flashlight from the actual representations given upon the stage.

"UNDER SEALED ORDERS." Last night at the Opera House, the new drama, "Under Sealed Orders," was given its initial performance in Wheeling. It is by James W. Harkins, jr., who is also business manager of the company. The piece is scheduled for a long run at Chicago. It has a theme iong run at Chicago. It has a theme unlike anything before tried on the stage—the scientific theory that life remains in the human head after decapitation, and in the fifth act when the villain gets his dues, he receives them through the evidence thus obtained. The play is expensively and elaborately mounted. The company included several good people.

Many people burn the candle of life at both ends. So me men who never go into vicious dissipation use up their energies just as much by overwork or late hours; and nearly all to use up their vital powers beyond all reason: It may be in housework; or social demands; or the bearing and rearing of children: At any rate the candle of life is too rapidly consumed.
